Demand Vote Recount on Will County Sheriff

A petition asking for a recount of the votes in the sheriff's race of the general election Nov. 2, in which Albert E. Markgraf, democrat, was declared the winner, has been filed in the county court by Alvah M. Weston, republican, defeated candidate, David Martin, H. S. Norton and William J. Bolton, friends and political advisers of Weston.

County Judge Ralph C. Austin has set Dec. 20 as the date for hearing. The petitioners charge fraud by judges and clerks in various precincts in the county and claim that a recount will give Weston a majority of 5,189 over Markgraf.

A summary of the allegations set forth in the petition as the basis for the contest follows:

1. That Weston would have been declared elected by the canvassing board if it had not been for the alleged errors, omissions and mistake of the election judges and clerks in counting the votes.

2. That the judges and clerks of the various precincts failed to count a certain number of votes for either of the candidates for sheriff which should have been counted for Weston; that they counted votes for Markgraf which should have been counted for Weston, and that they counted votes for Markgraf which were not legally cast for him.

3. That the judges and clerks in certain precincts, alleged to have placed crosses in the square to the left of Markgraf's name on ballots which had been voted as straight republican.

4. That ballots were sent out or permitted to be taken out of certain precincts marked outside of the polling places, returned and counted for Markgraf.

5. That persons whose names were not on the registration list were permitted to vote in certain precinct without being sworn in by the judges.

6. That judges and clerks in certain precincts are alleged to have allowed unauthorized persons to handle ballots before and after they were marked and while they were being counted. The petitioners also charge that unauthorized persons were permitted to assist persons in marking their ballots and that election judges for Markgraf was permitted in the polling places.

7. That in the 14th precinct (Markgraf's home precinct) the voting booths were not in plain view of the officers.

8. That the returns showed less votes for Weston than he actually received, and showed more votes for Markgraf than he actually received.

9. That Weston received a majority of the legal votes cast for sheriff and that a recount of the ballots will show this allegation to be a fact.

The court has dissolved one petition but has set a hearing on another petition for the February term of court.

The irregularities mentioned in the petitions are alleged to have occurred in Joliet and the country precincts are not mentioned in the election scandal.

Weston supporters have raised a fund through the county with which to carry on the election contest and vote recount.

This is the biggest political shake up Will County has had in many years and the voters are watching the outcome with great interest.

Fred Siemsen Losses Right Arm in Shredder

While Fred Siemsen, well known farmer of Worth township was engaged in shredding corn on his own farm Tuesday morning, he had his right arm taken off when he got caught in the rollers. The arm was badly mangled. Mr. Siemsen was rushed to the St. Francis hospital at Blue Island and the injured member was amputated above the elbow.

About a year ago to the day Mr. Siemsen met with an accident as he was engaged in shredding corn. At that time his coat collar got caught in the shredding machine and was nearly choked to death.

CHAPTER I

The Fray in Mincing Lane

"Watch! Ho, watch!" The words rang through the misty darkness of the narrow street. I gathered my cloak around me and skulked closer to the nearest house-wall. Could it be possible the Bow Street runners had picked up my trail again!

And a new worry assailed me. Did the cry come from in front or behind? The fog that mantled London, and which so far had stood my friend, now served to muffle the source of this sudden alarm. Which way should I turn?

"Watch! Curse the sleepy varieties!" The houses past which I had been feeling my way came to an end. An alley branched off to the right and from its entrance echoed the click of steel—music after my own heart. The blood coursed faster in my veins. No, this could be no trap such as had awaited me ever since I had stepped from the smuggler's small boat. Here was sword-play, a welcome change from the plotting and intrigue which had sickened me.

I cast my cloak back over my shoulder and drew my sword from its sheath, as I run over the uneven cobbles which paved the alley. Dimly I saw before me a confused huddle of figures that tumbled and stamped about in the ghostly mirk of the fog.

"Hold, friend," I shouted. "Make haste," panted a voice from the middle of the group.

One man against a gang of assassins! So that was the story. It savored more of Paris than of the staid London of merchants and shopkeepers over which the Hanoverian exercised his stolid sway.

But I had scant time for philosophy. They were on me in an instant, one assailant in front, an assassin on either hand, slashing with hangers and cut-lases that knew no tricks of fence, but only downright force. Their former prey was left with one to handle.

"Get to his rear, one of you fools," snarled the ruffian in command whilst he pounded at my guard.

But I backed into a handy doorway and barely managed to fend them off, their attack while the real object of the watch.

"Twas this which spoiled the fray for me. I could not but wonder, as I dodged and parried and thrust, what would happen if his cries should be heard and the watch appear. Would they know me? Or perchance should I have the opportunity to slip quietly away?

I stole a glance about me. Several windows had gone up along the street and nightcapped heads protruded to add their clamor to that of my friend. Surely—Aye, they had done it. The ruffian on my left leaped back with ear astart toward the alley entrance.

"Quick, bullies," he yelled. "'Tis the watch!"

With a celerity that was almost uncanny they disengaged their blades and melted into the fog. Their foot-falls dwindled around the corner as I detected the clumping footfalls of the approaching guardians of London's peace.

This brought me to my senses. I sheathed my sword and ran across the roadway, glancing to right and left for the best route of escape. But I reckoned without the other participant in our brawl.

"Be at ease, my master," he said in a voice which had a good thick Dorset burr in it—I liked him from that moment. I sounded so homelike; I could fairly see the rolling fields, the water meadows, the copses, all the scenes that had meant so much to me in boyhood, even the sprawling roofs and chimney stacks of Foxcroft house itself. "'Tis only the watch you hear. Hark to the jingling of their staves."

"I know that full well, my friend," I answered him, gooseflesh rising on my neck as the jingling staves and clumping feet drew nearer. "But I happen to have pressing reasons for avoiding the watch."

My friend pursed his lips in a low whistle.

"So, sets the wind in that quarter! Yet you came fast enough to my help against those cut-purses a moment back."

I laughed. The watch were all but in the alley's mouth. 'Twas idle to think of running now.

"Oh, I am no highwayman," I said. "Well, whatever you may be, you aided Robert Juggins in his peril, and 'twill be a sore pity if a worshipful alderman of the city may not see you through the scrutiny of a band of lazy bench-loafers."

"That is good hearing," I answered. "Will they have your description?"

"I think not, but if they ask me to account for myself I shall be at fault. I am but lately landed from France, and I have no passport."

He pursed his lips once more in the quaint form of a low whistle.

"I begin to see. There is a foreign cut to your wig that I do not like," he commented. "However, we will brazen it out. Here they come."

The watchmen rounded the corner into the alley, lanterns swinging high, staves poised.

"Ho, knaves," proclaimed a pompous voice, "stand and deliver yourselves to us."

"And who may you be?" demanded my friend.

"No friends to brawlers and disturbers of the peace, sirrah," replied the stoutest of the watchmen, stepping to the front of his fellows. "We are the duly constituted and appointed constables and watchmen of his honor the worshipful lord mayor."

"It would be nearer the truth to say that you are the properly constituted and habitual sleepers and time-servers of the city," snapped my companion. "Draw near, and examine me."

"Nay, sir," adjured the captain of the watch portentously, "do you approach and render yourselves to us. 'Tis not for lawbreakers to order the city's watchmen how they shall be apprehended."

"You fool," said my friend very pleasantly, "if you would only trust your eyes you would see a face you have many times seen before this—aye, and shall see again in the morning before the bunch of shorts when they head for the duties intrusted to you."

My friend left my side and strode toward the captain of the watch, who gave back a pace or two until he felt the stomachs of his followers at his back.

"How, now," said he who had called himself Robert Juggins, "hold up that lantern, you, sirrah, with the shaking arm. Look into my face, lazy dogs that you are. Dost know me?" He poked his finger into the fat figure of the captain.

"Sure, you are Master Juggins," assented that official with sullen reluctance.

"And is an alderman of the city and a cupmate of the lord mayor and sheriffs and the warden of the Worshipful Company of Merchant Traders to the Western Plantations, on his way home from a meeting of his guild, within the city precincts—aye, in Mincing Lane, under the shadow of Paul's—I say am I to be held up by cut-purses, stabbed in the arm, forced to defend my very life—and then denounced and threatened with arrest by the watchmen paid by the city to protect its citizens?"

"You stand here trying to prove 'tis I, and not they, who have sought to rob myself. Go to! Ye are worthless, and I shall see that the sheriffs and the magistrates at Bow Street know of it."

"But we will be after the scoundrels, worshipful Master Alderman," pleaded the captain. "Can you but give us a description of the knaves?"

"Shall I do your work for you?" replied Master Juggins in his delightful Dorset burr. "Zounds! How I liked the man with his broad humor, his ready courage and prompt good sense!"

"Nay, but—"

"But me no buts. Be about your rounds. And if you see any hang-dog rogues or homeless knaves or masterless men, do you apprehend them for the night and lodge them in the Fleet. In the morning you may let me know what you have done. I will then consider whether your belated efforts may overset your cowardice and laziness in the beginning."

"It shall be as you say, good Master Juggins," assented the captain meekly. "Which way went your assailants?"

"What? More questions?" exploded Master Juggins. "Nay, this is too much."

The watchmen turned in their tracks and herded out of the alley like bewildered cattle, all clumping boots, jingling staves, waving lanterns and jumbled wits. My savior removed his hat and mopped his brow with a white kerchief.

"So much for that," he remarked cheerfully. "Now—"

But he was interrupted from an unexpected quarter. The captain of the watch returned alone.

"I crave your pardon, Master Juggins," he began. "But we have been warned to keep a watch for a dangerous malefactor, an enemy of the state, one Ormerod, an emissary of the Pretender who is here on an errand against the crown."

Juggins favored me with a cursory glance of a somewhat peculiar nature. It was not exactly hostile, and yet much of the friendliness which had characterized his manner was gone.

I felt cold chills running down my back. Would he give me up? What right after all had I to expect better treatment from a total stranger, a man who had nothing to gain from shielding me?

"Go on," said Juggins coldly to the watchman, withdrawing his attention from me.

"Why, worshipful sir, there is no more to say. It is just that I thought, the attack being made upon you, a well-known citizen, it might have been—"

"And how should I know this person of whom you speak?"

"Why, sir, that I cannot—"

"Be about your duties, sirrah," interrupted Master Juggins, "and pester me no longer."

The captain stumped off to where his faithful band awaited him, the several curious-minded citizens who had listened to the altercation from the vantage-point of their bedroom windows, and Master Juggins strode back to my side.

"Is your name Ormerod?" he asked.

"I am Harry Ormerod, once a captain of foot under the duke of Berwick; and I formerly had the honor to be chamberlain to the man whom some people call King James the Third."

"You are a rebel, a conspirator against the crown?"

"I do not expect you to believe me, of course," I answered as lightly as I could, "but I am not a rebel—in spirit or intent, at any rate—and I am not conspiring against the Crown at this moment—although I have done so in the past—and I am at this moment a fugitive from justice."

"Humph," said Master Juggins thoughtfully.

He stood there in the middle of the alley, caressing his shaven chin.

"Ormerod," he murmured. "Harry Ormerod. But surely—of course—why, you are Ormerod of Foxcroft in Dorset."

"I shook my head sadly.

"No, my friend; if you know that story you must know that I was Ormerod of Foxcroft house."

Master Juggins was suddenly all animation.

"I know it well," he returned. "You and Charles, your elder brother, were both out in the '19. Charles died in Scotland, and you escaped with the remnants of the expedition to France."

"And Foxcroft house was sequestered to the Crown," I amended bitterly.

"The Hampshire branch have it now," went on Master Juggins. "They tottered it through the Pelhams."

"Yes, — them!"

Ormerod has known the ingratitude of princes, but he is to discover that gratitude is a quality that has not altogether disappeared from the earth.

Franklin Would Have Put Maxims on Coins

The first third of the Nineteenth century was the heyday of Staffordshire ware decorated with pictures. And not the least interesting of this china was the series picturing maxims, proverbs and morals.

Of this didactic china many pieces carried reproductions of "Poor Richard's" sayings, which our great American, Benjamin Franklin, industriously circulated through his Poor Richard's Almanack for 25 years.

The Poor Richard maxims were very near to Franklin's heart, and he let no chance slip to get them into greater circulation. One of his projects—which, however, was not carried out—was to imprint on one side of the copper coins of the new American republic some proverbs of Solomon and other sayings encouraging thrift.

"Diligence is the mother of good luck," and "Plow deep while sluggards sleep" were among those he suggested. His practical and benevolent mind pictured how many a family would read and ponder his precepts as they gathered round the hearth.—The Antiquarian.

CHIFFON FROCKS FOR THE DANCE; CLOTH COATS SANS FUR TRIMMING

IN ACCORDANCE with fashion's decree, youth will dance its merry way through the coming holiday festivities robed in lovely, colorful chiffon. Rather than the glimmer and sparkle of paillettes and beads which her elders select for the adornment of more sophisticated dress, the young girl chooses the daintiest of French flower trimmings—just like Gertrude Olmsted, the youthful film actress of beauty-prize fame, is wearing in this picture.

Peach-colored chiffon trimmed with French flowers is a brief description of this delectable gown. But look close; do you not observe something unusual about this adorable dance costume?

smartest modes rely on tailored simplicity for chic, rather than upon fur adornment. Quality-kind material and patrician styling are the marks of distinction which characterize the non-furred coat. The all-cloth-sans-fur wrap, often the preference of the elegant Parisienne for informal daytime wear, usually boasts a cape which tops a straight, narrow, mannishly tailored coat portion, just like this picture shows. The material is likely to be finest navy blue twill, although dark green suede cloth is also finding favor in recent models, while there are some few beige and gray cape types which are without fur.

time? Yes! That's it! A bag of come-not-amiss if the day be cold, so common festooned with the kind of flowers which trim the dress! And a lovely idea it is. Who would attend the dance next week or this without a cunning bag flower-trimmed to match one's dress?

Two-toned chiffon dresses are ever so attractive and so up-to-date. This method of combining a light chiffon with a dark tone of the same color is inspirational to the designer, who is thus enabled to work out many clever stylings. One very fetching dance frock following out the two-tone idea uses a delicate coral tone for the waist portion with a skirt of deeper toned red. A three-tone effect appears in the border and the girdle of a frock in green.

Another way of achieving a two-tone effect is to wear a shoulder bouquet whose flowers are of deeper tone than the dress. Often the chiffon frock is carries such over her arm, as you see in the illustration.

Women of last-word fashion in the French capital are also displaying interest in coats sparsely trimmed in fur, these directly contrasting the lavishly be-furred cloaks, which have reached that stage of popularity which voids their exclusiveness. Sometimes only the collar shows a bit of fur. The very swaggy coat bears a small military collar, frequently made of flat fur such as calfskin or broadtail. The long, straight line of the coat is broken by a narrow novelty belt, sometimes of the smooth, sleek fur, which is attractive.

A number of leading Parisian stylists are flaring the cloth coat about the knees. They accomplish this by a circular piece as pictured in the background in this group or by means not trimmed, or rather is self-trimmed with floating airy-fairy streamers, panels or draperies. A monotone frock of flesh-colored chiffon, for instance, has graceful, flowing lines, and its coloring is intensified in the deep pink rose at the shoulder, with a matching one at the girdle. A coral georgette is accented in color value by means of a deep red rose at the neckline.

Not infrequently the two-toned color scheme is carried out by applying velvet darker in tone than the dress it trims.

Not every coat in Paris is fur trimmed. Not a few of the season's of a broad shirred ruffle which is frankly full about the neckline. Gray suede cloth with a discreet use of gray squirrel for collar and cuffs was the medium chosen for the model here shown.

Fur-lined, but not fur-trimmed—at least not ostentatiously so, bespeaks coat elegance for a select clientele. Sports coats thus fashioned employ in their development stunning novelty weavens, such as English tweeds, Scotch plaids and similar weaves of highest standard.

Five Tube
R.F.L. - 75

$65

The R.F.L.-75 is a five-tube set in a two-toned mahogany cabinet and using a genuine R.F.L. circuit which provides true cascade amplification largely through the use, in each radio-frequency stage, of a complete Wheatstone bridge whose balance is practically uniform at all wave lengths. Non-oscillating at any frequency, non-radiating, and cannot be made to howl even if mis-handled. Crosley R.F.L. sets are recommended for satisfactory performance in the hands of inexperienced operators. Stations can be accurately logged. The price has been reduced to $65.00, due to savings effected in elimination of decorated bakelite panels and the substitution of wood panels with windows that permit the operator to observe the otherwise concealed dials. Pointers have been eliminated from the front panels. These changes, while effecting a saving, have, at the same time, made the set actually more attractive.

ST. MICHAELS CHURCH NOTES

The attendance for the communion Sunday of the Altar and Rosary Society was excellent with new members were enrolled.

The participants of the bunco and euchre party succeeded in having one good time and incidentally accumulated fifty dollars for the St Michael exchequer. First prizes were won by Mr. Herman Uthe and Mrs. O. Anderson. Secondary prizes were captured by Miss Margaret Homering, Mrs. Marg. Bump, Mr. Ed. Beaver, Miss Marian Jungles, Mr. Wm. Newcomb, Mr. Al. Schelling and Mr. John Stein.

Friday, December 10th "Stella Dallas" and a comedy entitled "Rural Romance", December 17th "The Goose Hangs High" also a good comedy.

ORLAND M. E. CHURCH

Sunday December 12th. Bible School at 9:30 a.m. Morning Worship at 10:30. The sermon in the next series on "What we need most and how to get it". Worship service at 7:30 p.m. Bread and meat do the body. There is no substitute for worship as there is none for physical food. Are you starving your highest life? That is nothing short of a calamity.

Evening service at 7:30 p.m. A continuation of the discussion on "Finding and Knowing God". Do not miss these interesting meetings. The Christmas entertainment of the Sunday school will be given on Christmas Eve, December 24th at the church. At this time a Christmas offering for World Service will be taken. We received about $35.00 last year but our goal is $50 this year. Let us do our best.

On Sunday evening, December 5, Orland united with Worth and Palos Park in an intercommunity service at Worth Community church. The service was under the general leadership of the pastor of the Worth church, the Rev. Paul T. Sanders. A feature of the evening was the singing of the boys' choir from the Garden Homes M. E. Church of Chicago. The pastor of the Orland church was exceedingly pleased to note this since the pastor of Garden Homes church was formerly one of Mr. Setterlund's "boys" when Mr. Setterlund was pastor of the South Shore M. E. Church, Chicago. Ray Bond is the enterprising minister of Garden Homes church.

Another innovation was that the speaking was done only by laymen. Mr. Clarence Beagley representing the Orland M. E. church spoke on "Christian Intercommunity Fellowship" and Miss Margaret Lysea of Worth Community church spoke on "Fishers of Men."

After the close of the impressive service an informal fellowship luncheon was served in the church basement.

The pastor of the Orland M. E. church invited all present to attend an Intercommunity Communion service to be held at the Orland M. E. church in January.

At the present writing Mr. John Loebe is very seriously ill. There will be no moving picture on Friday evening, December 24th since this is the time of the regular Sunday School Christmas entertainment.

CHRIST LUTHERAN CHURCH Clarence Kramer, president of our Young Peoples' Society who recently underwent an operation, is able to be out again.

The Young Peoples' Society met Tuesday night. A Christmas stocking is being filled for the organ fund.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hank, a daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Powell recently entertained the Wm. T.

When Christmas Comes

His Busiest Season

Of the distant past comes a whispered greeting that warms the heart of humanity. Merry Christmas! It echoes and re-echoes back across the long ages. It throbs through the generations of life, while kingdoms move like checkers on a checkerboard. Merry Christmas! It stirs the heart like some beautiful old memory. It quickens the pulse like a passionate violin. We forget to play at grownup, and in a moment we are all children again.

"Of all the old festivals," says Washington Irving, "that of Christmas awakens the strongest and most heartfelt associations. There is a tone of solemn and sacred feeling that blends with our conviviality, and lifts the spirit to a state of hallowed and elevated enjoyment."

From the early centuries of Christianity the anniversary of the birth of Christ has been celebrated. It is called "Christmas" because in early England the festival was called "Christemasse," which means "Christ's mass." At first the time of the festival varied in different places. Some churches observed it in December, others in January, April, May. There is no historical record as to the exact birth date of Christ. It seems possible, says Lillian Eichler in her "Customs of Mankind," that December 25 was established as the festival day because it marked the beginning of the great winter festival when Britons, Germans, and Gauls made merry in pagan fashion. Christmas replaced these old pagan festivities, the customs of the old blending into the customs and symbols of the other.

The celebration of December 25, as Christmas, spread to various parts of the Christian world. Later, as the festival spread, differences in date occurred owing to differences in calendar. But the general belief prevailed that Christ was born "at the hour of midnight on Christmas eve."

Many of our popular holidays appear to have been nature festivals at one time. Easter and May day were very likely spring festivals; Halloween, an autumn festival.

Christmas was originally a festival of the winter solstice. At this period of the year it was customary to hold great feasts in honor of the heathen gods, to dance and make merry. But the early teachers of Christianity prohibited these primitive festivities as unsuited to the character of Christ.

Yet the old festival was not discarded entirely. Its symbols and customs were adapted to the new festival in celebration of the anniversary of Christ's nativity. And so we find Christmas patterned with many curious customs that are of pagan origin. The Yule log, the holly, and the mistletoe go much farther back into antiquity than we suspect.

It is said that the first Christmas day festival held in Britain was celebrated by King Arthur in the city of York, A. D. 521. It lasted several days. The new customs were grafted upon the old, and the new symbols were adaptation of old ones. The festivals appealed instantly to the masses; a tiny spark was fanned into flame and it has burned brightly throughout all these generations.

By the early Middle Ages, Christmas had become the greatest of popular festivals. Beggar and king observed the day. Churches were decorated and quaint plays concerning the nativity were enacted. Carols were sung in the streets and images of the Virgin and of Christ were carried about from house to house. And, of course, there were feasting and merrymaking, as there always are at a festival time.

In Shakespeare's time the Christmas festivities were extremely elaborate. Sometimes they lasted until Twelfth day, or Epiphany—twelve days after Christmas. During this period there was no work of any kind. The people gave themselves over to feasting and gay celebration.

Then there was a reaction, as there generally is. The Puritans developed a keen distaste for the Christmas festivities, and prevailed upon parliament to prohibit them. Christmas was declared a day of fast, and festivities were prohibited by law. After the Restoration, however, the old observances came back—somewhat subdued, but gay and festive as ever.

The observance of the Christmas festival spread all over the Christian world. The date is not everywhere the same, nor are the customs identical. January 6 is the date observed in the Armenian church. The Dutch watch for St. Nicholas on the eve of December 6. The French have their own particular Christmas observances; the Germans have theirs. But wherever and whenever Christmas is celebrated, it is a day of rejoicing and good cheer.

At one time the customs and observances that we associate with Christmas had a very definite significance. Today they survive as part of our social scheme.

In America we have made of Christmas a period of great social activity. The old customs of other lands, combined with tender memories of the first Christmases in this country, make of the holiday a rare interval of joy and cheer which find expression in a semisocial, semireligious celebration. Everybody wishes everybody else a merry Christmas, and even the echoes are glad!

The first Christmases in America were not the gay festivities to which we are accustomed. They were days like all the rest, devoted to work and prayer. Governor Bradford wrote, "Ye 25th day began to erect ye first house for comone use to receive them and their goods." A few years after this was written the Church of England established Christmas services in Boston.

Our Christmas celebration carries threads from many lands. People coming here from France, England, Germany, Norway, Italy—all brought their own customs with them. Our Christmas tree and Santa Claus are imported. Our carols and our stocking superstition came from across the ocean. Even our "Merry Christmas" belongs to England.

Yet our Christmas festivities are individual, American. They are like those of no one country, but like a tapestry that has been patterned with many beautiful threads, our festivities reflect the customs, beliefs, and superstitions of many and widely separated lands.

Jolly old Santa Claus with his tinkling sleigh bells and pack of toys is very closely associated with the American Christmas. Our children hang up their stockings in high glee, fully believing that Santa will come down the chimney and fill them with good things, until, of course, they are old enough to separate fact from fancy, or until some cruel person shatters the beautiful belief.

Santa came to America by way of Holland. The old Dutch settlers of New York brought with them all the joyous and hospitable observances of their fatherland. They introduced to their neighbors in the New world St. Nicholas, or San Nicolaas, patron saint of children. And San Nicolaas promptly grew a long white beard, belted his jovial stoutness in a red coat, and made his bow to America as Santa Claus!

England, too, has its Santa Claus. The name appears to be derived in surmised interpretation from San Nicolaas, the English for which would be St. Nicholas. According to the popular myth, both here and in England, Santa Claus is supposed to sweep down the chimney, and fill the stockings hanging before the fireplace with gifts.

St. Nicholas became everywhere the child's saint, though his personality underwent some striking changes as he traveled from country to country. In Holland he remained St. Nicholas, but his personality was modified by memories of Woden, god of the elements and the harvest. He became the patron saint of the children of France, although it is Bonhomme Noel (Father Christmas, sometimes called Pere Noel) who brings the good things for the children. In Germany the Christ-kindlein is the patron saint of the children. From this German phrase for Christ Child comes our synonym for Santa Claus—Kris Kringle.

Among the Norwegians, the toys are hidden away in unexpected places and the children search for them. In Italy the gifts are drawn from what is known as "The Urn of Fate." This custom originated with the ancient Romans who had also an "Urn of Fate" from which gifts were drawn. In Spain there are elaborate street festivals at which the children receive gifts.

This age-old custom of presenting the children with gifts makes Christmas one of our most enjoyable festivals. In "Elizabeth and Her German Garden" the thought is beautifully expressed.

For days beforehand, every time the three babies go into the garden they expect to meet the Christ Child with His arms full of gifts. They firmly believe that it is thus their presents are brought, and it is such a charming idea that Christmas would be worth celebrating for its sake alone.

There is an ancient tradition in Holland that St. Nicholas makes his rounds upon Woden's horse, Slepner. This famous old horse of Dutch mythology is represented by the reindeer whose hoofs our children are supposed to hear on Christmas eve.

According to the old tale, the children of Amsterdam set their little wooden shoes in the chimney corners because they believed Slepner would pass by unless he saw them there. And St. Nicholas would give no gifts unless he saw the little shoes in a row by the chimney place and so knew that the children were tucked away in bed. Evidently some parents of long ago created the myth for their own convenience; it spread quickly, as such things do, and gradually became an established custom.

From Holland the custom spread to France, and children were taught to place their wooden shoes upon the hearth to receive the gifts of Bonhomme Noel. In Germany and Scandinavia the gifts are not placed in the shoe, but hidden in out-of-the-way places about the house.

The stockings that the children of England and the United States hang up on Christmas eve developed from the shoe. Shoes won't stretch, you know, and stockings are so much more roomy! Thus the shoe of Amsterdam became the stocking of New Amsterdam, and the custom was established.

There existed in the east of Russia, among the peasantry, an old custom whereby the young girl discovered through divination whom she would have as husband. The traditional formula, still prevalent, is, "Come and take my stockings off." Among the professional classes, and sometimes in the lesser nobility, parents placed money in the stockings of their child—boy or girl—at marriage as a gift for the other partner in the ceremony. Some writers, prominently among them Havelock Ellis, believe that the custom of hanging up the stocking at Christmas is a relic of these two customs from Russia.

Lesson for December 12

THE BOY SAMUEL

LESSON TEXT—1 Sam. 3:10, 15-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Boy Samuel.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Calls the Boy Samuel.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Boyhood of a Great Leader.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Hearing and Heeding God's Voice.

In order to grasp the story of Samuel's boyhood life, a survey should be made of 1 Samuel, ch. 1-3.

I. Samuel Given in Answer to Prayer (1 Sam. 1:19, 20).

The name Samuel means "asked of God." He was given to Hannah in answer to her prayers. In connection with her asking this gift from God, she vowed to give him to God. He was to be therefore a Nazirite all the days of his life.

II. Samuel Given to the Lord (1 Sam. 1:24-28).

For a time he was cared for by his mother in the home. The best nurse and teacher for a child is its mother. According to her vow when she asked the Lord for this child, at an early age she took him to the sanctuary and gave him over to the charge of Eli, the priest, to minister in the sanctuary.

III. Features of Israel's History In This Period (2:12-36).

1. The demoralized priesthood.

(1) They were actuated by greed (2:12-17).

It was God's will that those who ministered at the altar should live of the things of the altar, but they broke through the divine regulations touching this matter, even to securing their selfish ends by force.

(2) Gross immorality (2:22).

The courts of God's house were thus polluted. The condition of the nation was most appalling: Degradation and ruin follow rapidly when God's ministers are under the sway of lust and greed.

2. An alienated people (2:30-32).

Their sins separated them from God. God's holiness is such that those who practice sin are alienated from Him.

3. The cessation of divine revelation (3:1).

The Word of God was precious in those days. "There was no open vision." This shows that God was silent. The message from the Lord was more a memory than a present experience. The same thing in principle is true of the individual life today. Some who once enjoyed fellowship with God no longer hear His voice speaking to them.

IV. God Called Samuel (3:2-10).

In striking contrast with the degeneracy of the nation, we have before us the beautiful life of Samuel. Dwelling within the sacred courts and ministering before the Lord with Eli is the innocent Samuel who is become the savior of his people. In Samuel we have a striking pattern of child religion. The Lord gave him in answer to Hannah's prayer. From his birth he was dedicated to the Lord.

While quite young his mother took him to the sanctuary of the Lord where he served and slept. Two traits in Samuel's character stand out in this call, namely, his cheerful obedience to the Lord's call and his surrendered will. He expressed his willingness before he knew what was required. He did not inquire what was wanted and then let his obedience depend upon its suiting him. We should believe that the Lord knows what is best and be willing to yield glad obedience to His commands.

V. Samuel's First Prophetic Message (3:11-18).

Up to this time Samuel obeyed the one who was over him, but the time had now come when he must directly hear and obey the Lord. The first message entrusted to him was a most terrible one. To deliver it was a most trying task. He hesitated to tell it to Eli, but when pressed by him he manifested the true courage which was lying back of his fear. It must have been a bitter experience to Eli to see Samuel recognized and himself passed by, but he was submissive. He knew that the slight was just. He could not fail to interpret it thus in view of the appearance of the man of God to him (2:27-36). This fearful visitation upon Eli's house was due to the sins of his sons. He was held accountable for not restraining them.

VI. Samuel Established in the Prophetic Office (3:19-21).

"And Samuel grew and the Lord was with him and did let none of His words fall to the ground—and all Israel from Dan even to Beersheba knew that Samuel was established to be a prophet of the Lord."

Two in Family

In the family of Irvin Cobb literary talent seems to be inherited, for his daughter, Mrs. Frank M. Chapman, who lives in Italy, is to publish her first novel this fall. Its title is "Falling Seed." Mrs. Chapman recently made Irvin Cobb a grandfather, a fact that was commented on when the humorist met Mussolini. Husband and wife are often authors, but it seldom happens that father and daughter are.

If Back Hurts Begin on Salts

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

Oh, These Moderns

Now blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, and cold for the hot. It is current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap, and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man even.—Cervantes.

FOOD FOR WINTER DAYS

During the chilly early winter days it is wise to have a stock pot on hand, so that hot soups may be a daily food. A most delicious meal, if the evening meal is light, is begun with some sort of hot soup, cream of stock or vegetable.

Chicken Warmers.—This is a good cold weather dish. Stew a nice fat fowl in plenty of water to make broth. When the fowl is cooked remove it and cut all the meat from the bones. In the broth cook two or three bunches of celery cut into small pieces; when cooked remove the celery and add noodles, cook them until done, and with all the other things kept hot, serve a nest of cooked noodles on the dinner plate, cover chicken and celery with gravy and serve with mashed potatoes. Save enough of tender hearts of celery and some of the white meat of the chicken for chicken salad. The broth that is left may be served by adding cream and egg, making a most nourishing soup for the night meal, a day or two later.

Cranberry Ice.—Cook a quart of cranberries in a pint of water six minutes. Strain through a cheesecloth, add a pint of sugar and stir until dissolved. When cool add the juice of two lemons and freeze to a mush. This will serve a dozen.

Chicken and Green Pepper Sandwiches.—Parboil for ten minutes green pepper with seeds and fiber removed. Chop fine and mix with one cupful of cooked seasoned chicken, moisten with mayonnaise. Spread thinly sliced rye bread with butter, using lettuce and the filling.

Pressed Corn Beef Sandwiches.—Cook corn beef until it falls in shreds. Drain and arrange the shreds lengthwise with some of the fat in a small bread pan. Reduce the liquor in which the meat was cooked to one and one-half cups, pour over the meat, place a weight on it and let stand overnight. Unmold and slice in thin slices. Use as sandwich filling with slices of Spanish onion dipped in French dressing.

Sandwiches.
For a cold night and a supper dish there are a variety of hot sandwiches to appeal to the appetite.

Hot Egg Sandwiches.—Slice a small onion very thin and fry in a little butter; when well cooked add an egg, when cooked to taste place on buttered bread with the onion, cover with another buttered slice and serve at once, seasoning well.

Cheese and Herring Sandwiches.—Work one cream cheese and two teaspoonfuls of beef extract to a blended mixture. Skin and bone and finely mince fillets of herring, or those put up in mustard may be used; there should be an equal measure of cheese and fish. Moisten with mayonnaise, spread slices of bread with the cheese mixture and press the fish into slices of buttered bread; put slices together in pairs.

Gingerbread Sandwiches.—Cut gingerbread into three-inch squares, split and spread with cottage cheese that has been moistened with cream; and well seasoned. On the other squares place chopped preserved ginger or orange marmalade. Put together in pairs and serve with hot tea or cider.

Hungry Hunter Sandwiches.—Have ready a round steak cut one-fourth inch in thickness, cut into pieces a trifle smaller than the slice of bread. Pound the steak with the edge of a heavy saucer until the fiber is broken and the meat barely hangs together. Drop into a well-greased hissing-hot spider and turn quickly when seared. Cook until well browned, spread with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and minced parsley. Place on buttered bread, cover with another slice and serve at once. Serve with horseradish if preferred.

Steamed Sliced Bread.—Butter stale bread and steam until hot, spread with butter again and cover with jam or berries of any kind. Serve with sugar and cream.

Lobster Salad Sandwiches.—Remove the meat from a freshly cooked lobster, or if not at hand, a canned one. Finely chop and add an equal quantity of chopped celery and one-fourth the quantity of hard-cooked eggs. Moisten with mayonnaise. Spread thinly sliced and buttered bread. Cut the sandwiches into narrow strips. Serve with tea at bridge parties.

Cottage cheese well seasoned and mixed with green pepper and chives finely minced makes a delicious filling for sandwiches.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

(© 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

GALLSTONES

OUTSIDE of infectious diseases, probably one of the commonest afflictions of the human body is gallstones. On account of civilized methods of living they are commoner than they were in primitive times. But that they are by no means a product of civilization is shown by the fact that they have repeatedly been found in Egyptian mummies as well as in the dried bodies of Peruvians, buried in dry sands thousands of years ago.

The gallbladder is a pear-shaped sack which lies on the surface of the liver in a cleft between the lobes. It is bound down to the liver by layers of peritoneum. Its pointed end is drawn out into a long tube, the cystic duct, which joins another tube from the liver, the hepatic duct, the two uniting to form the common duct, which empties into the small intestines just below the stomach.

If for any reason any part of the tube becomes stopped up, if the gallbladder itself becomes inflamed, then the bladder becomes swollen and distended and can be felt as a pear-shaped tender swelling just under the edge of the ribs on the right side.

Why stones so commonly form in the gallbladder has been hotly discussed. The bile, in some cases, is thick, almost tarlike and easily forms hard lumps if it has anything to form around. According to some authorities, germs from the blood, getting into the bladder, grow there on account of the favorable conditions found there and masses of these germs form a center around which a gallstone grows in layers.

These stones may be single or many. Sometimes at operation or autopsy, the gallbladder may feel like a boy's sack of marbles.

So long as they stay in the bladder they do little or no harm. But when one tries to pass out through the narrow duct, the trouble begins. The duct is stretched by the rough, hard stone. This causes gallstone colic, perhaps the most painful of all human ills. It lasts until the stone passes out into the bowel or drops back into the bladder.

If the stone works down into the common duct and dams off the liver, then the bile cannot escape but is taken up by the blood and the patient has yellow jaundice or "janders" as the public call it.

The only sure relief for either colic or jaundice is to open and drain the bladder and remove the stones.

ACNE

ONE of the bitterest sorrows that can afflict the boy or girl of the high-school age is a poor complexion. Probably more mental anguish has been caused by pimples on the face than by any other cause. And, sad to say, pimples or acne, as dermatologists call it, is more common from fourteen to eighteen than at any other time in life. It reaches its peak at eighteen, gradually fades away in the twenties and usually disappears by thirty. But by that time the girl is married and the boy has business worries, so that a muddy complexion is not the acute tragedy it is at eighteen.

In former days parents gave their children sulphur and molasses to "cool their blood," the eruption on the skin being supposed to be due to "impurities" in the blood, for which sarsaparilla was the sovereign remedy. But the real cause lies in the skin itself.

There are in the skin several different kinds of glands. The oil glands or sebaceous glands, as they are called, keep the skin soft and supple, by secreting oil, which is discharged on the skin through tiny oil ducts. Naturally, persons with a thick, oily skin or those who eat large quantities of fat-producing food produce the largest quantities of oil.

As long as these little oil ducts are kept open the oil flows out on the skin. This keeps the skin oily, as many a schoolgirl knows when she powders her nose to remove the shiny appearance. But if the oil is thick, and so tends to choke up the oil ducts, or if soot, dirt or powder unite to form a thick paste with the oil, then the ducts become stopped up and "blackheads" form. The oil forming behind these plugs cause the skin to swell and turn red and little pimples to form. Taking medicine internally is of no use. What is needed is external treatment which will open up the clogged ducts.

The best treatment is the good old-fashioned one of soap and water—soap to dissolve the oil in the plugs closing the ducts, water to wash away the oily dirt and to cleanse the skin. But the skin of the face is not made of hard wood. You can't scrub it like a floor. The skin must be cleansed but not irritated.

Regular frequent washing of the face with a soft big wash cloth and a pure, mild soap and pure soft water, followed by floods of cold water to stimulate the skin, is the best treatment. A pure skin cream may help in dry, harsh skins, but generally persons with acne have too much oil in their skins already. Wash your face clean every night with plenty of warm water and your skin will soon take care of itself.
